IIE Network University Presidents Interview Series

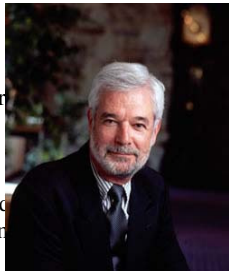

IIE Network University Presidents Interview Series

In an effort to provide readers with a perspective on how the upper levels of higher education administration interpret the importance of internationalization and the role of the university in promoting it, IIE Network presents the University President's Interview Series.

The Series aims not only to highlight international efforts on campuses nationwide, but also to discuss how international experiences have impacted the careers of the Presidents interviewed and how best to equip today's students for an increasingly global world.

FEATURED INTERVIEW: A Conversation with President Sanford J. Ungar, Goucher College

In the fall of 2006, Goucher College made an unprecedented commitment to internationalizing its campus by becoming the first U.S. college to require all of its undergraduates to study abroad. Two years after the implementation of this requirement, IIE Networker presents a conversation with Goucher College President, Sanford J. Ungar, to find out what has changed at this small liberal arts college and how the many international experiences of President Ungar helped to shape him in his role as college President.
