AP 566.100 Preparing Students for Advanced Placement® Statistics
Tuesday, June 21 through Friday, June 24, 2022 (7:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. EDT)
Note: Monday, June 20, 2022, is the Juneteenth federal holiday.

This online course will focus in detail on the philosophy, content, and pedagogies related to creating and implementing a successful course in AP Statistics. The sessions will engage participants in the four main areas of AP Statistics: exploring data, sampling and experimentation, anticipating patterns, and statistical inference. During this training, teachers will explore the Course and Exam Description (CED) including the big ideas, enduring understandings, learning objectives, and essential knowledge. Participants will understand how to use activities that organize the course content to develop students’ proficiencies in the skills identified by the curriculum framework; participants will work on a course plan that will help them decide how they will teach the skills and content of the AP Statistics courses. In addition, participants will explore and incorporate the new tools from the College Board to enhance their instruction and maximize the probability of their students’ successes.

Participants will be expected to collaborate and participate fully in the proceedings of the course and will be encouraged to create a network of support.
