Race, Power, and Perspective

Through engagement in the following distinct experiences that ordinarily map onto the four years of a Goucher education, students will accomplish the progressive learning outcomes of this requirement:

1. First Year Experience: articulate the connections between identity (including opportunities and experiences) and perspectives and reflect critically on their own biases and those of others.

FYS 100 – First Year Seminar (4 Cr.)

FYS 100W - First Year Seminar Writing (4 Cr.)

2. Completion of a designated course across the curriculum (typically sophomore year): understand the institutional, cultural, and structural factors of race, power, and privilege that shape perspective and experience.

ED 104 – Child and Adolescent Development (4 Cr.)

ENG 236 – Latina Literature Across Borders (2 Cr.)

LAM 105 – Introduction to Latin American Studies (4 Cr.)

LAM 236 – Latina Literature Across Borders (2 Cr.)

PSY 219 – Black Psychology (4 Cr.)

SP 230S – Intermediate Conversation & Composition with Community Based Learning (4 Cr.)

SP 230V – Intermediate Conversation & Composition with Online Component (4 Cr.)

3. Study abroad with accompanying course or online dialogue: develop emotional skills necessary to engage with those different from oneself with awareness of and respect for cultural and racial differences and empathy for the different experiences of others.
